IMPLEMENTS OF INDUSTRY. Car ye will have it that it clothes lie all the people run in prowds to hear it. possibilities of civilization. We have seen a very good, essay written to I rove that the exanother may have discovered the sum of all of appeals o' the state of New York. that man has done, and of all of which he is capal e But it would seem that the plough, soap, cothes, and all the other indiciasof. civilization are an effect as much as they are a over the head if he tries to crawl under the cause. The whole is a growth; but if any one canvas. thing could be said to lie behind at , the plough would seem to have such claim to the distinetion that it might be all rmed as a principle that the grade of a peop'e could be determined t rough all the course of their history by the plenghs they have used. It has been observed also that improvement of all other implements has stoadily fol owed or attended the improvement of the p.ough-an observation that may require some qualification, The United States and Mexico are cont guous countries. In the one we find an intelligent and olaborate system of agriculture carried on by means o' implements ranging from the primitive and indispensable hoc and bull-tongue plough to the complicated and tru y wonderful machinery invented by modern science. In the other, agriculture is carried on by the mass of the people by the suplest and most superficial process Their plough is of the most ancient and mimitive character, and the soil is for the most part on f scratched by the laborer, who is attorly without the aids furnished by improved mac linery or by any combination tool or implement that multiplies power and saves the expenditure of human force. Now, the difference that obtains between these people, as thus indexed by the dirergent systems of agriculture, is found to provail in all characters and concisions of human life that make up what we call civil zation. While, therefore, the per eating of the plough is one sign of the superiority of the people of the United States as compared with those of Mexico, it is only one. Our penale door gen liw vest canacod adjust posts con ing of an r kind, except it be good, while he people of Mexico are poor enough: a all sarts of mechanical appliances, yough includes, and seem to want no better. It is the charge ar of a scople that lies begind a l. Intelligence and rednement create a demand for good slother, cause the free use of scap, require good plong as and other implements, and, in word, wil have nothing of any sers unless it be the best that can be obta ned. in agricul-Sure, particularly, since agriculture las always been the great industry of the United States, our people as a rule have better implements are showhere to be found, and they employ labor saving machinery in agriculture an orient unknown in any other part of the globe. It if the cuty of those who are interested in Purtland and the fature to see that the city beof manufacturing industry. There is a stall here for year one enterprises that forms in deathfold with prant. Our readers no doubs noted perioday the morporation of the Northern Pacific Manufacturing Company, a company which will engage ozensively in the manufacture of warons, carriaged and agricultural implements. This is a step in the right direction. For every enter-prise of this kind there should be liberal subscriptions of stock. If this particular bustages be taken hold of proporly it can be made to pay largely. The material for the lines of manufacture proposed are here. It is only necessary to prepare them. Portlat d must become a manufacturing city. Every, arge establishment sun oys a great deal of labor, and omployment or labor is the one thing needful to industrial growth here. Indi ference so the comary branch of development, which has so long prevailed, must give place to a comprehension of its requirements. Un ess these activities be developed in Portland they will certainly be developed elsewiere. There is ample capital horo for many recessary, undertakings, and it behooves the owners of this capital to consider the situation and their opportunities.

It is announced that the Southern Pacific railroad will be completed by July or August. next, bringing California into direct rail communication with Galveston and Jew Orleans. California journals are confident hat this will afford a circet outlet for the wheat of that state to the European market. Charles Crock, er, president of the road, said a ow days ago to a reporter: "It is took soon yet o talk about rates but one thing can be put down as. cortain-we are going to carry the wheat. We don't say how much we are going to carry it. for, because we are not ready yet to carry it. When we are, we will talk, and tak loud.
